

Evaluation of Medico-Ethno-Botanical Studies on Indian Medicinal Plants

Umesh Chandra*

Medico-Ethno-Botanical studies are now been in prominence for the cause of conservation and utilisation of the plant resources spreaded over in the tribal areas of the country. The Ethno-Botany study is an important and interesting subject which possesses an appropriate field for comparative study of literature and field resources. The out come of such studies can be seen from the discovery of several 'wonder drugs' from plants with rich Ethno-Pharmaceutical studies in a original scientists.
