Received on 9th Feb., 1990

This paper deals with the identity of the drug 'Brahmi', sold in Delhi Market. Morphological and taxonomical studies of the drug proved that it contained mostly 'Khubasi' (Malva rotundifolia) either in pure form or intermixed with 'Mandukparni' (Centella asiatica). Characteristics of 'Khubasi', 'Mandukparni', and the original 'Brahmi' viz. Bacopa monnieri are provided here for the benefit of the consumers.
